Policy

To make this site work properly, we sometimes place small data files called cookies on your device. Almost websites do this too.

What are cookies?

A cookie is a small text file that a website saves on your computer or mobile device when you visit the site. It enables the website to remember your actions and preferences (such as login details, choice of language, font size and other display preferences) and any changes in these over a period of time, so you don't have to keep re-entering / resetting them whenever you come back to the site or browse from one page to another.

1. How do we use cookies?

Cookies typically do not contain any information that personally identifies you, but personal information that we may store about you could theoretically be cross linked, by us, to the information stored in and obtained from cookies. The cookies used on the website include those which are 'strictly necessary cookies' for access and navigation, cookies that can track usage of the website: 'performance cookies', cookies that remember your choices: 'functionality cookies', and cookies that could provide you with targeted content or advertising: 'marketing cookies'. We don't use deliberately utilise these 'marketing cookies' but make you aware of them in case a link or service we provide through the website uses them.

We may use the information we obtain from your use of our cookies for the following purposes:

- * to recognise your computer when you visit the website;
- * to track you as you navigate the website, and to enable the use of any e-commerce facilities or similar interactions;
- * to assist in improving the website's usability;
- * to analyse the overall use of the website;
- * in the general administration of the website;

2. Third-party cookies

When you use the website, you may also be sent third party cookies.

Our service providers may send you cookies when you access their services. They may use the information they obtain from your use of their cookies:

- * to track your browser across multiple websites;
- * to build a profile of your web surfing activity;
- * to analyse the use of the website (the website analytics tool we use is Google Analytics - which only collects anonymous website usage information; such as number of views of a particular page within the website);

3. How to control cookies

You can use the history and privacy features of your web browser to do this by:

- * choosing to delete all cookies;
- * choosing to block all cookies;
- * choosing to allow all cookies;
- * choosing to block all 'third-party' cookies (ie, cookies set by online services other than the one you are visiting);
- * clear all cookies when you close the browser;
- * choose to open a 'private browsing' / 'incognito' session or tab, which allows you to browse the internet without recording or exposing your current or past browsing history to this or any other website and preventing the storing of new cookies or data - you should however be aware that doing so may place limitations on the availability of features on this and other websites despite the privacy context;
- * installing an add-ons or plugins that extend browser functionality. These are often referred to as 'ad-blockers';

Some browsers include a feature known as 'Do Not Track' or DNT. This allows you to indicate a preference that websites should not track you. However, whilst DNT is available in many browsers, websites are not required to recognise its request, so it may not always work. You can get help on how to use DNT:
